“Apply” Slide

- Next week you should: Deepen understanding of Chinese nation-state threat actors—their motives, tactics, and how they relate to your organization’s risk posture; Examine the broader implications of Chinese threat activity on national and international security; Explore the geopolitical drivers shaping the evolution of Chinese cyber operations.
- In the first three months following this presentation you should: Communicate effectively with executive leadership about the risks posed by Chinese nation-state threat actors; Clarify internal roles and responsibilities in the event of a breach through better engagement with security leaders.
- Within six months you should: Simulate a Typhoon-style intrusion to evaluate your organization’s readiness and response; Enable strategic conversations about how security infrastructure must evolve to counter sophisticated nation-state threats.
